

THE SERENDIPITY SINGERS

In The Fieldhouse At 8:30

Serendipity Singers To Appear Tonight

The Serendipity Singers, one of the nation's top singing groups, will appear tonight in the fieldhouse at 8:30 p.m.

The fastest moving eight in the U.S.A. is not the winner at Indianapolis, but the Serendipity Singers who are among the most popular and best traveled singing groups on record (no pun intended).

THE SIX boys and two girls blend their talents into a single unit that provides audiences with an exciting and varied act (the show includes group numbers, individual numbers, comedy bits, blackouts, dramatic sketches, etc.) in concert, college auditoriums or television shows. With eight individuals and eight different personalities, one can expect offstage life and logistics to get hectic—but the group applies the same thought and precision to their offstage routine as they do to their music and staging, managing to keep confusion down to a surprisingly low minimum.

FOR ONE person to take care of all of the traveling, food, laundry and similar necessities, the group would have to hire a Casey Stengel or a Sargent Shriver, or they'd have to carry an oxygen tent with them. The task of keeping The Serendipity Singers in shape requires the bookkeeping knowledge of a CPA, the patience of Job, and the understanding of a psychoanalyst. Instead of finding one person with those qualifications, the group got together and decided that they would split up the various functions and "make like an assembly line."

SO IT is that Mike Brovsky checks the airplane reservations, Jon Arbenz is in charge of the laundry visits, Bob Young takes care of the nourishment, Lana Rae Shaw keeps the clothes in order, and so on. Here are eight individuals with eight different reactions and outlooks but they work together like the Bolshoi Ballet.

Before a departure date, Mike first takes a head count. Then he and the others systematically check guitars, bass, banjo, tamborine, conga drums, performing costumes, personal luggage, schedules, itinerary, arrangements, and housing reservations. Upon arrival one member sets up reporting phones, another checks microphones, still another takes care of the lighting and special effects with the local contact. Someone acts as touring exchequer for all the expense money.

For short trips the Serendipities travel by car. No... not one car, but two nine passenger station wagons which have been leased to carry them and their assortment of properties.

So far luck has been with the eight performers and only one has ever been misplaced during a change of planes. They didn't discover that JoAnn Carey was missing until two hours before their concert was due to begin.

WHEN THEY finally located her, she was calmly sipping a coke and reading "The Decline And Fall Of The Roman Empire" at the local airport. It seems that she had just taken the next available plane and followed them knowing that they eventually would hunt her down.

WHEN THE time permits, the Serendipities split in search of their own interests and activities... sight-seeing, shopping, sleeping, movies... all of which comes to a halt when show time approaches. Then, with everyone having done his job, each "Serendip" leaves his responsibilities behind for a couple of hours, and steps into his role as one of the eight most appealing and versatile performers on the music scene today.

Petitions For Senator Must Be Obtained From SG Office

All students wishing to run for Senator must obtain a petition from the Student Government office in the University Center to be filled out.

Each college—education, business, home economics, agriculture, engineering, and liberal arts—will elect two Senators in campus-wide balloting.

Deadline for the petitions is Friday. Senator and class officer elections will be held on October 3.

Miss Tenn. 'Cops' Ticket

UTM's Miss Linda Sue Workman, the reigning Miss Tennessee, paid the campus an unofficial visit this past week.

SHE SPENT Thursday night in B-Y Dorm visiting friends after returning from an appearance in Jackson, Tennessee.

She attended the first Zeta Tau Alpha meeting of the year and then promptly returned to the dorm at its closing hours. However, Linda Sue was unable to park her official car in the crowded lot, so she stopped in the drive coming into the dorm.

LIKE ANY "ordinary" student, she had a traffic violation ticket flapping from her windshield Friday morning, which was addressed personally to Miss Tennessee. When Linda Sue strolled into the Ad Building to pay the violation before returning home, she was told that she would have to pay the fine because "she is not enrolled this quarter." When she confusingly returned to her car, she was face to face to another campus cop beside her car which was again parked in a restricted area!

Linda Sue will appear in the Banana Festival in Fulton both Friday and Saturday nights. She will dance Friday night to the "Portuguese Washwoman," her winning talent in the Miss Tennessee Pageant. Saturday night she will sing "I Don't Care," her talent in the Miss America Pageant. Linda Sue hopes to visit our campus again during the Banana Festival.

Univ. Band Performs At Mid-South Fair In Memphis

The University Band under the direction of Mr. Robert C. Fleming participated in the Mid-South Fair at Memphis Monday evening.

THIS year's annual Mid-South Fair, in its 11th year, is the largest event of its kind in Tennessee. Among the popular entertainers appearing this week are Jim Nabors (Gomer Pyle), Roy Rogers and Dale Evans.

The University Band marched in a short parade to the Free-O-Rama stage where they were the opening performance of the evening. It was the band's first trip to the annual event.

Campus Police Issued Arms TPJ Announces Essay Contest

Campus cops are now pistol packing police. UTM's academic gendarmes are showing their true caliber— .38 Smith and Wesson.

ALTHOUGH a part of the policeman's uniform on night duty, the UTM campus constabulary does not wear side arms during the day except when guarding the state's money. Pistols are worn during registration when tuition money is being collected, and when it and other university collections are being taken to the bank.

According to K. W. Cantrell, newest member of the four-man-force, the police do not usually wear the weapons during the day because they are not meant to be a symbol of authority. He said they serve the practical purpose of helping to protect university buildings from break-ins, and, if necessary, to protect the night watchman, too.

CANTRELL, a retired Air Force sergeant, returned to his native Martin this summer after 22 years of military service as a vocational advisor. During the summer quarter, he arrested three youths who broke into Clement Hall. Only one of the trio was a student.

Police on larger campuses are often members of the legendary Pinkerton Detective Agency. However, members of the three-year-old UTM police force are sworn in by the Martin chief of police, and have as much jurisdiction as the municipal police force. At the present time these guardians of the peace are busy putting tickets on the cars of students who make a habit of parking in the faculty lot or between no parking signs.

READY FOR ACTION—Standing as if he were accustomed to an arm strapped to his side, Officer K. W. Cantrell sports his new pistol which the campus squad is now wearing.

The recently published "Tennessee Poetry Journal" is the subject of an essay contest open to all high school and college students. Students may choose any of the poems in the "Journal" for critical analysis.

THE ESSAY should include analysis, explication, a study of imagery, versification, language, and texture. To be eligible, all work must be original.

First prize will be $25; second, $15; third, $10; and there will be five honorable mentions at $5 each.

THE CONTEST will be judged by Professors Frank Steele and Ray Lancaster, Mr. Ben Thomas, Dr. Stephen Mooney, and Dr. Charles Mangam.

The essays should be typewritten, double-spaced, and should not range more than 1500 words in length. The deadline for mailing entries is December 15, 1967. Results will be announced early in January, 1968.

Essays should be mailed to: Tennessee Poetry Journal Student Essay Contest, Box 196, Martin, Tennessee, 38237.

Grad Program Affords Increased Opportunities

With an enrollment of slightly over 3,100, the University has an increase of 11 to 12 percent over last year. Of this number 1,400 are freshmen. Alumni are astonished by the number of new students and new buildings on campus.

THE INCREASE in enrollment is due partly to the fact that attending college is considered, not only the vogue, but an absolute necessity by the majority of America's middle class. Of course the buildings are necessary to provide classroom and housing accommodations for the greater number of students.

THESE enrollment figures do not include the as yet unregistered students in the new Graduate School of Education who will represent a comparatively small, yet highly important, element of UTM's academic realm. The graduate program will insure an element of quality to go along with the quantity of increased enrollment.

However, this is not to say that the increase in enrollment necessarily means a decrease in quality. Most freshmen are already, or will develop into conscientious students with a desire to learn. Nevertheless, mass enrollment and new buildings, especially new dormitories, do not make a university great.

THE GRADUATE School of Education will afford teachers an opportunity to continue their education and profession simultaneously since the courses will be taught at night. Enrollment in this or any graduate education program during a time of nation-wide teacher's strikes should be of interest to the general public as well as to educators. It goes without saying that the future of education depends upon educators.

Below is the most recent architectural rendering of the campus. It includes present and proposed facilities.

HS Seniors See Conservatively

By Lance King

Some 130,000 high school seniors, when asked to compose a short essay on the topic of the open mind as part of the annual College Board's English Achievement Test, produced widely varying and somewhat surprising and definite reactions.

Rather astonishingly, the overwhelming attitude of the nation's average 17-year-old high school senior is one of basic conservatism—in dress, in morality, in politics, and in the social set.

THIS BASIC conservatism is clearly evident although it does not carry to the extremes in any form. The mood tends to shy away from the extremes of liberalism as well. The students seem to want to follow a moderate or "middle-of-the-road" attitude.

Sexually speaking the seniors of last January are alarmed by the changing moral standards. They are not yet reconciled to the rising of the ladies' hemlines and the "top-less" look.

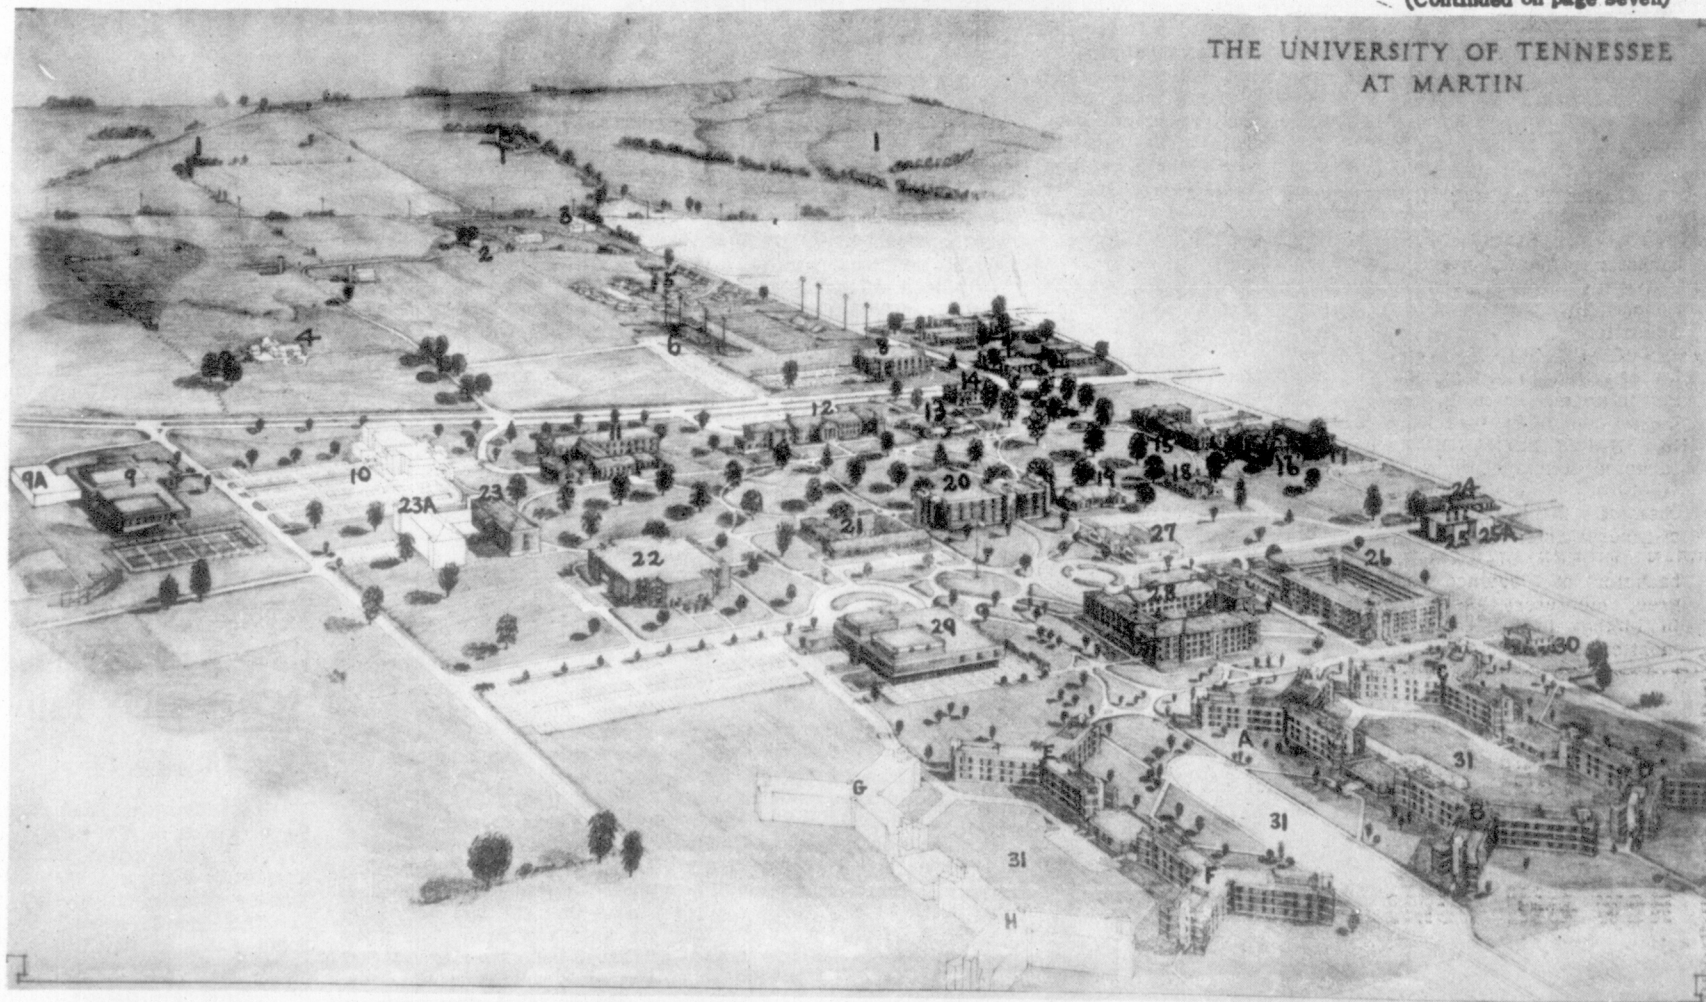

ACCORDING to the vast majority of students, the lowering of moral standards is viewed as completely unacceptable. This moralistic attitude is somewhat revealing.

This far-reaching conservatism is applied not only to the moral situation but also to the political arena. Extremists in any form, left or right, seem to be on the way out. This conservatism, this adverse reaction to the liberal position, seems to be based more on wispy fears than on the sound

Handicapped Citizen Honored By Ellington

Mrs. Dorris Fly Parkins of Milan will be honored as Tennessee's "Handicapped Citizen of the Year" at a dinner given by the University Monday, October 2, at 7:30 p.m.

THE Honorable Buford Ellington will award the Governor's Trophy to Mrs. Parkins in the presence of her husband, Bob Parkins, and their seven children, relatives and friends from Milan and West Tennessee, industrialists of the area, state legislators and officials and representatives of the University of Tennessee administration.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Parkins are alumni of the University of Tennessee at Martin.

VICTIM of crippling polio during her second year in high school, Mrs. Parkins refused to be overcome by her handicap, went back to school and earned her diploma, coached a winning basketball team her senior year, attended college two years, married while still a student, has become the mother of seven children, and at the present time serves as advertising manager of her husband's newspaper, THE MILAN MIRROR.

Mrs. Parkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denton Fly of Milan.

Toastmaster at the award dinner to be held in UTM's University Center will be Herman Robinson of Elizabethton, chairman of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, and one-time state senator. Mr. Robinson is a former winner of the Handicapped Citizen of the Year Award. W. Quency Scruggs is executive secretary of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

DR. ARCHIE R. Dykes, vice president of the University of Tennessee and chancellor of U-T at Martin, will welcome the group. Appearing on the program prior to Governor Ellington's address and presentation of the award will be Bernard Posner, deputy executive secretary of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, Washington, D.C.

Over 1,000 invitations have been extended to attend the award dinner October 2 which is being held at this time to celebrate the National Employ the Handicapped Week.

Choralairs Holds Singing Auditions

Auditions for the Choralairs, one of the campus choral groups, are being held daily.

THE Choralairs perform numerous times throughout the year and stage concert tours in the Spring. The University Chorus, composed of anyone with a desire to sing, does not make auditions mandatory.

Additional information for either group may be acquired by contacting Miss Harriet Fulton or Mr. John Matheson in the Music Building.

BEAUTY ADDS TO RUSH—Linda Sue Workman, the reigning Miss Tennessee, poses with Marie Gelzer, Zeta Tau Alpha President, and Mrs. Arthur Sparks, during one of the sorority rush parties. Linda Sue paid an unofficial visit to the UTM campus and attended the Sunday rush parties held by her Zeta sisters.

Auto Designers Are Discovered On Campuses

Wouldn't it be nice if cars were designed intelligently? They are... in colleges and universities all across the country! But then, commercial mass market and economic factors are not of prime importance in the classroom. Nevertheless, Detroit has scouted campuses almost as diligently as the various automobile race tracks for new automotive ideas, and have found plenty.

SPORTS CAR GRAPHIC Magazine became interested in campus automotive research and activity a few months ago. Maybe there was a story or two around the campus. The abundance of material uncovered was astonishing. So bountiful, in fact, that SPORTS CAR GRAPHIC Editors decided to start a new monthly series, "Sports Cars On Campus." A different college will be covered in each issue, with all phases of automotive activity reported.

"The Quiet Revolution at M. I. T." will start the series in the October issue of SPORTS CAR GRAPHIC. This six-page feature, broken into three sections, provides a glimpse into the lives of some of the young men who are doing this fascinating and often fantastic research. The first section entitled "Sports Cars at M. I. T." gives a quick rundown on the M. I. T. Sports Car Club. An engineering society might better describe this gathering, as this could be the most technically oriented Sports Car Club in the world!

"Design From An Ivory Tower," the second section, introduces a luxury car, the MIT-X. All designs of this project car must not be conventional, but student's ideas.

THE LAST section of "The Quiet Revolution at M. I. T." might not be too quiet, as is entitled "Sloan Laboratory and Machines That Go BANG!" Things get pretty technical within the walls of Sloan Automotive Engine Laboratory, but S.C.G. translates the M.I.T. egghead language into simple words any of us can understand.

In November, SPORTS CAR GRAPHIC plans a story on UCLA.

logic of reasoning and intelligence. This decline in liberalism is shown by the fact of a coolness toward President Lyndon Johnson and his administration. It seems as though the hero myth surrounding the late John F. Kennedy is beginning to be pierced by reality, and he is now beginning to emerge as the statesman and public figure he really was. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is now being looked upon as an ineffective meddler rather than the model conservative.

THE CONFLICT in Viet Nam has divided the students just as well as the remainder of the public. They are made up of the usual hawks and doves, but there are also the confused and bewildered birds.

Communism is seen as the monster ready to take over in any area where the United States relaxes its defenses—in Viet Nam and the Far East, in civil rights, in education, and in religion. On the nature and philosophy of communism, however, the students are hor-ribly ill-informed. Their knowledge of the Communist theory appears to be almost non-existent.

Opposition to civil rights has diminished to an extent. Even in the deep South the prevailing attitude is one of resigned acceptance. Officials noted the absence of "hate" papers which have been so common in the past several years.

WITH A knowledge of American history that is only superficial at best, the knowledge of histories of other lands is, at best, poor indeed. They seem to have only a vague impression of chronology and culture.

However, in the area of current events, the knowledge appears to be somewhat better and more detailed. Comprehension is low, and thoughtful solutions are seldom offered.

A degree of narrow-mindedness is obviously evident. One student wrote, "My opinions may not be the best, but at least they are mine." In a sense, this narrow-mindedness is being equated with a degree of individualism.

Reading, outside of class, is abnormally low, and comprehension is even worse. With the exception of the standard classics read by most of the high schools, reading is almost non-existent for a majority.

A CRY FOR more discipline rather than less seems to be evident. Many look to their parents and elders for examples, and too often these examples are poor at best. Convictions and values are eagerly sought but not easily found. One young man stated, "My mother wears textured stockings and mini-skirts, and my dad sports a six-foot muffler. In our house it is morality 'a go-go'."

The official consensus is that, even with society's present emphasis on sex, there is a moralistic attitude prevalent in the nation today. The seniors seem wary, eager to be accepted, and desperate for security.

SOME officials tend to believe that these impressions may not be wholly accurate. Doubtless, some may be, and probably are not completely correct, but one thing does appear to be genuinely real—and that is—the conservatism.

Vols Pound Millikin In Gridiron Play 70-0

The Vols met the "Big Blue" from Millikin University last Saturday with bone jarring results for the opposition.

To start the ball rolling, in the first 3 minutes of the ballgame, Steve Allison took a 12 yd. toss from field general Allan Cox to chalk up the first Volunteer score making it 6 to 0. Lee Mayo converted making the 7 to 0.

FOUR minutes later after capitalizing on a Millikin fumble Sharks slammed in from the two yd. line. Mayo converted making the score 14 to 0.

Tennessee kicked off again to Millikin, and after holding the "Big Blue" offensive unit to no gain, took it in themselves. It was Shanks again from the two. Mayo kicked his 3rd P.A.T. in a row, making the score 21 to 0.

Seven minutes later after forcing the "Big Blue" to punt, it was Will Heath taking a 9 yd. aerial from Allan Cox and with Mayo's conversion, the score was 28 to 0.

MILLIKIN took another Tennessee kickoff but fumbled again, this time on their own 30. Four plays later, it was all Volunteers as Shanks plowed in from the three. And with Mayo's 5th P.A.T. for the occasion the score stood 35 to 0 at the half.

Tennessee kicked off to open the second half. But Millikin, unable to move the pigskin, surrendered another Vols score. This time it was Steve Allison on a 4 yd. pitch-out. Mayo again converted, making the total 42 to 0.

AFTER receiving another Volunteer kickoff, Millikin, played by fumbles hobbled another one which Tennessee recovered and turned into another score with Carroll Hook going in from the one. Mayo booted his 7th P.A.T. for the day to make it 49 to 0.

Two minutes later it was Hook in again, this time from the two yd. line. Millikin had fumbled on their own 10 yd. line and Tenn. recovered. Mayo, having a fine day, made his own tally 8 for 8 in the P.A.T. dept. and the score 56 to 0.

WITH SEVEN minutes to go, Hook, liking the feel of paydirt, crashed in again making his 3rd of the day and with Mayo's 9th P.A.T. the score became 63 to 0.

UTM kicked off again. Millikin held on to the ball and moved it out to their 30 yd. line but were stalled there. Then Millikin made the mistake of letting too much of the pigskin show and Tenn. retained possession. With three minutes remaining, Steve Allison got his 3rd score of the day on a 27 yd. pass play from quarterback Robby Baird. Lee Mayo stepped out on the field and made his tally 100% with his 10th P.A.T. of the day making the final score 70 to 0.

The Air Force doesn't want to waste your Bachelor of Science Degree any more than you do.

B. Sc. Those letters have an impressive sound.

But they won't be so impressive if you get shunted off into some obscure corner of industry after you leave college. A forgotten man.

You want activity. You want to get in there and show your stuff.

All right. How do you propose to do it?

If you join the United States Air Force you'll become an expert fast.

The Air Force is like that. They hand you a lot of responsibility fast. Through Officer Training School you get a chance to specialize where you want... in the forefront of modern science and technology.

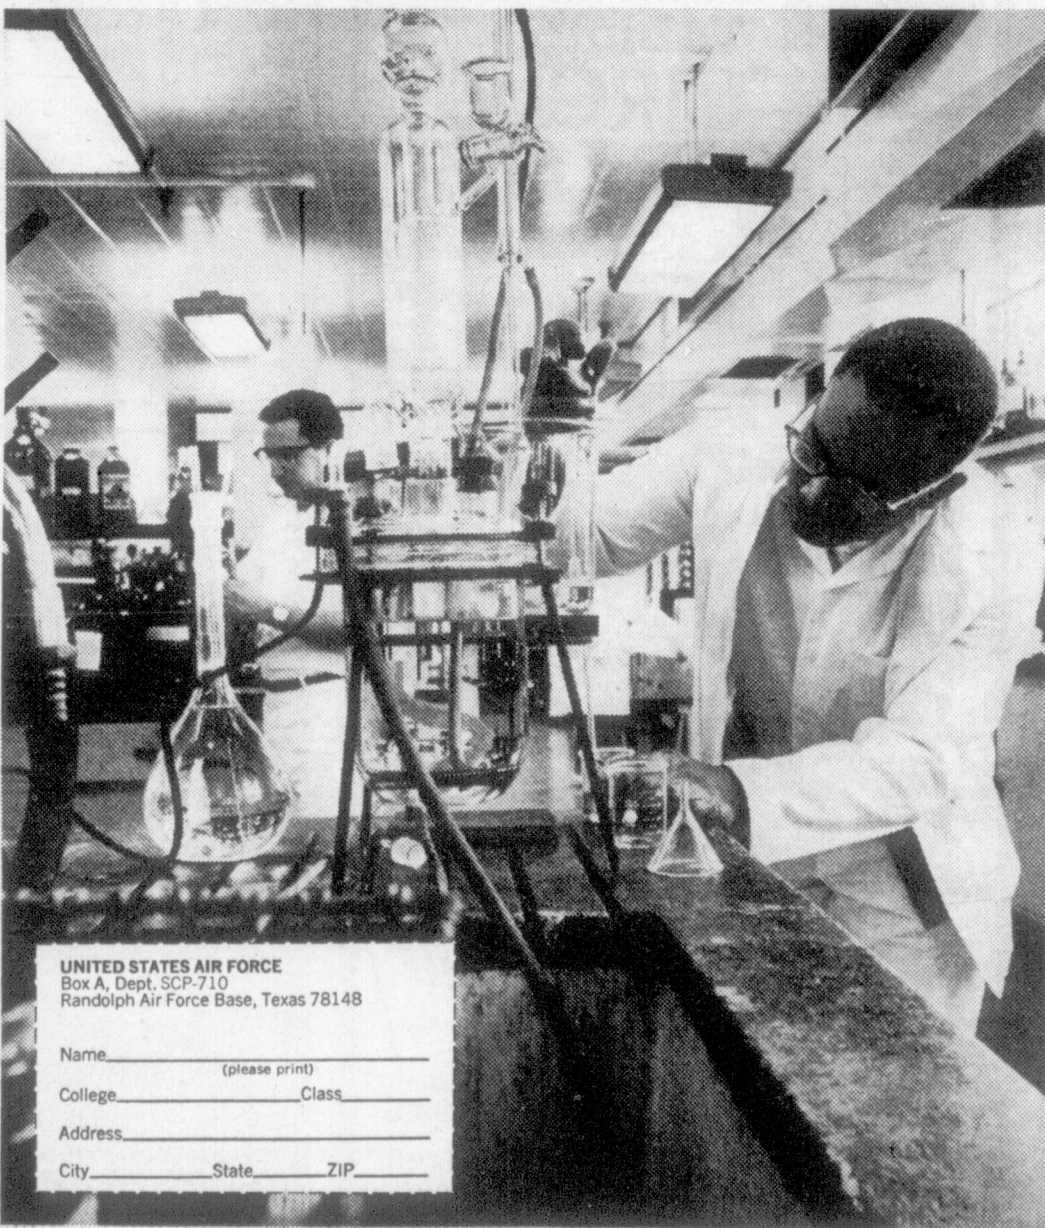

Suppose, for example, you wanted to become a pilot and serve as aircraft commander on airplane crews. You'd plan missions and insure that the aircraft is pre-flight, inspected, loaded and equipped for the assigned mission. You'll be trained to fly exciting aircraft.

Just examples. There are so many more.

Wouldn't it be pretty nice to enjoy officers' pay and privileges? And serve your country, as well? Also, you get retirement benefits, 30 days' paid vacation, medical and dental care.

B. Sc. Very impressive letters. Now, do something with them.
